The religious denominations referred to are the Quakers and the Shakers, who are non-combattants. We know of no other denominations that are. A man may be himself conscientiously opposed to military duty, but being a member of no religlogs denomination which makes non-combativeness a portion of its creed, the Governer's order would not apply to him if drafted. Quakers and Shakers are the only individuals who can avoid military duty (if drafted) by paying the sum of two Gen. Morgan's Retreat from Cumberland hundred dollars, unless, indeed, they can procure a substitute for that sum.

We observe that several of our cotemp ruries, the Plain Dealer among the rest, have carelessly attempted to give the substance of the order referred to as follows:

"The War Department has fixed the commutation for drafted persons at two drafted person, particularly if he bas conus scruples, as all moneyed men

A careful perusal of the order will convince any one of the mistake.

The most senseless rumors with regard to the manner in which the draft is made, have been circulated by designing men among the less intelligent and more excitable portion of our citizens. One is that the names of rich men are written on thick paper, and the names of poor men on thin paper, so that the man who draws the lent spirits.
